Healthcare environments are not just buildings accommodating modern technology for treatment of ailments and diseases.

Hospital designs directly impact patients' health in more than one way. Privacy is a major concern as well, especially in general wards and shared accommodation. The solutions to these issues were the basis of the design development for this facility.

The development of this facility was proposed in two phases; even though self-sufficient by themselves they should seamlessly integrate with each other. The hospital located in an emerging healthcare district, also had to aesthetically stand out, apart from the high quality of care and spaces, to have an edge over the competition.
